Women of faith: The steps of a good man (or woman) are ordered

By Angenetta Lambert,
USAG Bamberg Public Affairs volunteer

BAMBERG, Germany -- Ministry, by tradition and practice is male dominated. Chaplains, pastors, ministers and the like, are often thought of as men. U.S. Army Garrison Bamberg has the unique privilege of housing two exceptions to this tradition: Cathy Nickelson, Bamberg Gospel Service Pastor and Chaplain (Capt.) Terri J. King, USAG Bamberg Rear Detachment chaplain.

Nickelson, Bamberg Community Chapel's first female pastor, began her work in ministry as an Evangelist. Nickelson would travel to churches and assemblies upon request sharing messages about God "whenever and wherever" she was needed.

The Gainesville, Fla. native is the youngest of seven and a veteran of the United States Army.

"My family didn't understand why the baby would want to join the Army, but it was all in God's plan," Nickelson said. "The steps of a good man are ordered by the lord."

Nickelson completed an 11 year career in the Army and says that she doesn't regret one minute of it.

Chaplain (Capt.) Terri J. King, U.S. Army Garrison Bamberg Rear Detachment chaplain holds up one of the quilts being presented to a Soldier. King is one of a very small group of females within the U.S. Army's chaplaincy and the first within Bamberg.

Nickelson said she wasn't allowed to carry out her responsibilities without supervision when she first began her walk in ministry.

"Everyone seemed to be more lenient with males," she said. "I think it was based on protocol or religious principle rather than spiritual principle."

She says she has no regrets and views every disappointment as an appointment by God.

Nickelson offers the following life lessons as advice to community members:

1. Stay submissive to God and he will make you a leader of whatever he wants you to be.
2. Patience is truly a virtue; it works out some of the kinks in your character.
3. Don't be afraid to be the best you that you can be regardless to what others are doing.
4. Take the time to study a matter before you jump to conclusions.
5. Be slow in your reaction so that you can respond properly.

Chaplain King echoes that sentiment, stating that her childhood adversities led her to missions projects at the age of 17.

"I started doing mission projects in Florida, then Mexico, Dominican Republic, Mozambique, and a few other little places in the world," King said. "Between those initial places I started to get a feel for God's mission for the world and my place in it."

Travel options when moving available for Soldiers, family members, civilians

By Sina Kingsbury,
USAG Bamberg Public Affairs

BAMBERG, Germany -- Garrison Bamberg's Transportation Patriot Express is a contracted commercial charter mission that provides support for Soldiers, family members and Department of Defense personnel relocating to and from the United States and Germany. Air Mobility Command has contracted buses to provide free ground transportation to and from Ramstein Air Base and Warner Barracks.

As of Feb. 7, the Commercial Travel Office, currently operated by SatoTravel a division of Carson Wagonlit travel, must first check the availability of seats on the Patriot Express before issuing commercial tickets to passengers here at Warner Barracks. The weekly shuttle departs Warner Barracks every Tuesday at 1:50 a.m. for Ramstein. Schedules are posted on Warner Barracks' website and the Patriot Express' homepage.

Soldiers, family members and civilians stationed at Warner Barracks have several travel options when moving back to the United States. Traveling to Ramstein Air Base one day prior to scheduled departure is another option. SatoTravel will assist with transportation as needed or requested.

U.S. citizens may be exempt from German census survey

By Simon Hupfer, USAG Bamberg Public Affairs

BAMBERG, Germany -- The German Federal Office for Statistics has sent out their final round of census or "Zensus" questionnaires.

More than eight million residents, about 10 percent of Germany's population, will be asked questions on their household income, marriage status, religious beliefs and birthdays.

Do Soldiers, family members and Department of Defense civilians have to participate and answer these questions? The answer is yes and no.

Participants of the census survey have been picked based upon information provided by the resident's community. Residents then get notified through a letter via German mail.

"Members of foreign armed forces in Germany are exempt from the household survey," said Daniela Hartmann, Federal Office for Statistics in Wiesbaden, in an email. "The questionnaires for the household survey do not have to be filled out. That's stated in paragraph two, section one, third sentence in the 2011 census-law."

The household survey can easily be identified; the questionnaire is green.

The interviewers should be politely notified that the residents, or one of the household members, fall under the jurisdiction mentioned above.

"It was stated in the interviewer's handbook, but obviously not all interviewers received one," said a member of the County Commissioner's Office in Bamberg.

Being a DOD civilian employee is a different story though.

According to Birgit Lückemeier at the County Commissioner's Office, DoD civilians are not exempt and have to answer the green questionnaire.

A second set of questionnaires has been sent out to real estate owners. If Soldiers or their family members own an apartment or house in Germany they might receive an orange survey.

Answering those questions is mandatory, no matter if you are a member of the armed forces or a civilian employee. About 17.9 million people have received the orange census survey.

Not filling out the orange questionnaire can result in a fine. Before the penalty payment is due though, households will receive two reminders via mail.

"We recommend that people simply approach us and bring all the paperwork with them," said Maxi Genosko-Bauer, legal assistant attorney at USAG Bamberg law center.

The Federal Office has provided another service, to help U.S. citizens with the census survey. All census information campaign is available online in English at www.zensus2011.de/english.html

For more information in English, visit <https://www.zensus2011.de/international/english.html>

King said that she was able to see similarities between Afghanistan and third world countries where she did missionary work.

"I very much see Christ alive, alert and awake in these places," she said. "It's been an incredible opportunity to grow and to see my God at work."

Chaplain King is one of a very small group of females within the United States Army's chaplaincy and the first within Bamberg.

"I am the only one here, but I'm not complaining," she said. "I've seen and learned so much. I'm grateful for the opportunity".

King's biggest life lessons that she would like to share with community members are:

1. Be a humble learner.
2. If you treat people with dignity, respect and humility and you're willing to learn you will get a lot done and be transformed in the process.
3. Follow your calling. If you feel called to follow God in a certain way, follow God, check your balance – don't go crazy but follow your calling. If it's in your heart to serve as an officer, an NCO, a cook, a mechanic, as a battalion commander or as a general, follow your calling.

Whooping Cough vaccine booster recommended for adults

ERMC News Release

HEIDELBERG, Germany -- Many people are unaware that the immunization they received for whooping cough as a child does not last into adulthood.

To prevent the spread of this disease, The U.S. Centers for Disease Control (CDC), Public Health Command Region – Europe and Europe Regional Medical Command recommend a booster vaccine for adolescents and adults.

What is it? Pertussis, also known as whooping cough, is a highly contagious respiratory disease caused by the bacterium Bordetella pertussis.

Pertussis usually starts with cold-like symptoms, a runny nose, a mild cough, and a low-grade fever. After one to two weeks, severe coughing can begin.

Coughs end with a “whoop” sound as the person gasps for breath. This extreme coughing can cause vomiting and fatigue and can last for weeks.

In infants, the cough can be minimal or not even there. Infants may gag, gasp or have a symptom known as “apnea” (a pause in breathing). Pertussis is most severe in children and can even be fatal in infants. More than half of infants younger than 1 year of age who get the disease must be hospitalized.

Why is the booster important? The CDC estimates that 600,000 cases of pertussis occur every year in the United States, and the number of cases is increasing in both the U.S. and in Europe.

Soldiers, civilians, and their families stationed in Europe may be at even greater risk because traveling to different countries exposes us to many people.

How can you prevent pertussis? The best way to prevent pertussis is to get vaccinated. The recommended pertussis vaccine for infants and children is called DTaP (diphtheria, tetanus and pertussis) and the series of five shots is completed by the time a child enters school.

Vaccine protection for pertussis, tetanus and diphtheria wanes with time but adults can protect themselves and the children they are in close contact with by getting a booster vaccine.

Adolescents and adults up to age 64 should receive a one-time booster for protection against tetanus, diphtheria and pertussis (Tdap), preferably at age 11-12.

Pregnant women in need of the booster should receive it late in the second trimester or during the third trimester.

Adolescents and adults of any age (including those 65 and older), who have close contact with an infant under 12 months old, should be vaccinated with Tdap as soon as possible.

How is pertussis treated? Pertussis is generally treated with antibiotics and early treatment is very important. Treatment may make your infection less severe if it is started early, before coughing fits begin. Treatment can also help prevent the spread of the disease.

Treatment after three weeks of illness is unlikely to help because the bacteria are gone from your body, even though you usually will still have symptoms.

Children, child care workers, and health care workers with suspected or confirmed pertussis should stay home from work, school, or day care for at least the first five days of antibiotic treatment.

Getting the vaccine: At your next appointment, talk to your provider about getting the vaccine. You can also see your local immunization clinic during regular duty hours or make an appointment if it is required.

Eco-Friendly Tips

Water-saving Tips

1. Run your clothes washer and dishwasher only when they are full. You can save water and energy, and this reduces the amount of detergent entering the sewage system.
2. Collect water leftover from your water kettle to water plants- it has extra calcium.

Energy-saving Tips

1. Eat more raw foods- simply put, if you cook less, you'll use less energy. You will also retain more vitamins and nutrients in the food you and your children eat.
2. Plug home electronics such as TVs and DVD players into power strips, turn off the power strips off when the equipment is not in use (TVs and DVD players in standby modes still use several watts of power).

Recycling Tips

1. For products containing hazardous components, read and follow all directions on product labels.
2. If you need to use products with hazardous components, use only the amounts needed. Leftover materials can be shared with neighbors.
