Daylong events scheduled for Fourth of July

By Jessica Lipari,
USAG Bamberg Public Affairs

BAMBERG, Germany -- Family and Morale, Welfare and Recreation will have a daylong Fourth of July celebration for community members of Warner Barracks, providing them with a day of recreation to celebrate in a manner similar to home.

The daylong celebration has a full range of activities to appeal to all community members: single Soldiers, children and Families.

"Community members are encouraged to come out and celebrate our independence," said Brad Cline, Community Activity Center and Special Events director.

Cline has been involved in the planning of the event for the past 18 years at U. S. Army Garrison Bamberg.

"Each year we build on the last and bring back favorite activities and add new ones," Cline said. "This year's celebration is going to be the best this community will have had."

Activities will be happening all around post, and the main entertainment will take place at Pendleton Field.

A child watches as a performer juggles during the Fourth of July Celebration last year. This year's celebration will include a golf tournament, 5-kilometer fun run, car show, live entertainment, activities and games and, of course, fireworks.

"The Family and MWR team is looking forward to providing this great annual event for our many deserving Soldiers and family members," said Darrell Clay, director of Family and MWR.

The day's activities will start off at 9 a.m. with a golf tournament at Whispering Pines Golf Course and a 5-kilometer community fun run at Freedom Fitness Facility, and conclude with fireworks at approximately 10:30 p.m.

U.S. Army Garrison Bamberg's Fourth of July Car and Bike show will be bigger than years past, Cline said. It will include both new and American classic antique cars, along with motorbikes.

Community members can bring their car and enter it into the annual car show for a $10 entrance fee. Also available will be the Dynamometer, which measures a car's horsepower and torque, for a $40 fee.

Children will have an opportunity to ride electric scooters as part of the car and bike show this year.

For more information, call the Auto Skills Center at 0951-300-7546.

Last year's event included the the debut of the AquaZorb. This popular activity, which allows community members to walk on water in an inflatable ball, will be returning.

Town hall meeting provides tips for move to Baumholder

Bamberg Staff Report

BAMBERG, Germany-- With the pending closure of Warner Barracks, some Soldiers and Families in the 16th Sustainment Brigade are in the process of relocating to Baumholder. On June 4, the 16th Sust. Bde. hosted a town hall meeting at the Freedom Fitness Facility to answer questions pertaining to the move. Personnel from Baumholder provided information. Below are some of the questions and answers that may help make the transition to Baumholder as seamless as possible.

Question: Does a child having a spot at the Child Development

Center here in Bamberg have any effect on whether they will receive a spot at a CDC in Baumholder?

Answer: Currently, there is no wait list for child care in Baumholder. With the deactivation of the 170th Infantry Brigade Combat Team and a significant number of current Baumholder Families moving over the next few months, we anticipate even more spaces to open in our facilities.

Consequently, we do not expect Families moving from Bamberg to have any problems securing child care here. Families moving from Bamberg may contact our Parent Stacy Crawford runs with her dog, Dixie, during the Great Outdoor Five-Kilometer Community Fun Run on Saturday. Ten community members participated in the run, which took place in the Local Training Area. The next community fun run will be on July 4.

There will be no Warner Weekly on July 5 due to the Fourth of July holiday.

Caterpillars in Bavaria likely to cause rashes, respiratory problems

By Douglas DeMaio, Bavaria Medical Department Activity Public Affairs

VILSECK, Germany -- News agencies in Germany are reporting that 10 of Germany's 16 states are battling a population explosion of the Oak Processionary Caterpillar, and their toxic hairs can cause severe allergic reactions for some people.

Adverse reactions may occur when someone comes in direct contact with the hairs or inhales a hair that is floating in the air.

"If you touch those caterpillars, the hairs can break off and they are barbed, so they can stick into your skin," said Lt. Col. Mark Carder, Grafenwoehr Health Clinic commander and an entomologist. "There is a chemical associated with that hair that causes the skin to become irritated. We call them urticating hairs. If you were to inhale one of them, it could cause an allergic reaction."

Allergic reactions can be mild to very severe, which would require a person to see a health care provider, Carder said. Other symptoms include eye irritations and occasional respiratory symptoms.

Most symptoms are going to start out as an itchy rash and can be resolved with an over-the-counter medication, he said.

"If you feel like you have been in an area where the Oak Processionary Caterpillar lives or you have actually seen some, one of the first things you might want to do is change your clothes," Carder said.

Carder also recommends that people wash their clothes and take a shower to rinse off the hair if they believe they encountered the caterpillars.

Populations of the caterpillars will be the greatest when there is a warm and dry spring or summer.

"If the environmental conditions are just right, then you are going to have larger numbers," he said. "It is only those fourth through sixth larval caterpillar stages that cause a problem. That stage is pretty distinctly bound May through June.

However, the exposure risk isn't gone from the environment. The caterpillars form a community to start the lifecycle over again.

"There is always protection in numbers," Carder said. "They conglomerate together. Once they are in that web, it is almost like a community cocoon."

The hairs from the caterpillars can continue to cause a problem for people, Carder said.

"It takes pretty specific equipment to reduce the infestation," he said. "What you don't want to do is try and tear it down with a stick or something like that because... you will break those little hairs off. They will float around in the wind and you have the likelihood to inhale them and have some sort of allergic reaction."

If people see a web near an oak, Carder encourages them to stay away from the area and to call the Directorate of Public Works to remove the nest. A team from DPW will spray down the web with a bonding agent to keep the hairs from flying from the nest.

"If you see that in an oak tree, stay out of that area," Carder said. "It is best to not play or picnic under those types of trees. It is best to call DPW.

The Oak Processionary Caterpillar is more than just a health risk, Carder said. Other risks to the environment are associated with the caterpillars.

"It can be pretty devastating to the oak tree," he said. "If caterpillars eat all the leaves off the tree, the trees can't make any energy to live."

Supervision policy protects safety, health of community children

By Sina Kingsbury, USAG Bamberg Public Affairs

BAMBERG, Germany -- Do you know your state's laws on leaving your child unattended?

Chances are; there is not one.

According to the National Child Care Information Center, only Illinois and Maryland have laws regarding a minimum age for leaving a child alone.

Most states offer guidelines that suggest parents should consider factors such as maturity and self-reliance.

When it comes to deciding if a child is mature or responsible enough to be left alone, sometimes those factors are not enough to protect a child's safety.

To ensure the safety and health of children, parents and guardians must adhere to the following Warner Barracks' policy:

- Children below kindergarten require close supervision; therefore, they must be in direct contact with a caregiver.
- Kindergarten to 5th grade: Direct contact with child is not necessary; however, caregiver must be in the immediate vicinity of the child and must be able to see and hear the child at all times.
- 6th to 7th grade: Caregivers should know the child's whereabouts and check on them frequently.
- 8th to 10th grade: In most cases should be mature enough to supervise themselves, but not overnight. These children can babysit siblings for up to 12 hours and be able to have access to an adult.
- 11th to 12th grade: May be left alone overnight but should be checked on by an adult. Children in 12th grade can be left alone for no more than three consecutive days.

"It is to protect children," said Mark Bradley, Army Community Service's Family Advocacy Program manager. "Particularly here in Europe, if a child wanders outside the gate, the people who run into this child may not speak the same language."

Every member of the Bamberg community is responsible for the safety of its children, states the Warner Barracks' policy on supervision of children. Therefore, Soldiers, family members and civilians are responsible for reporting any violations to the military police.

"We are talking about children," Bradley said. "When it comes to children, it takes a community to raise a child. It's all of our responsibility to make sure all of our kids are safe."

Bradley urges community members to report unaccompanied children to the military police.

"The police will come and find where the child is supposed to be and talk to the parents," Bradley said. "If they believe it is a crime case, they might take it as child neglect."

If the police suspect a child is being neglected, there are several procedures to remedy the situation.

"The police notify social work services who bring the Family in and an assessment is made to find out if neglect is really the issue," Bradley said.

All cases of child abuse and child neglect go before the case review committee. The case review committee will confirm or deny a need for treatment.

The committee is there to help Families and ensure abuse or neglect does not occur again, Bradley said.

In most incidences here, neglect is rarely the case but a lack of familiarity with Warner Barracks' supervision policy.

"Most of the cases we see are a matter of education," Bradley said. "Parents do not know that some of these grades or ages apply and when they find out, they are fine with it. Very seldom does it rise to the level of child neglect."

Families here care genuinely about their children, he said.

For more information on the child supervision policy, visit <http://www.bamberg.army.mil/cg/policies.asp> or call Family Advocacy Program at 0951-300-8397.

U.S. forces alcohol ration policy changes in some European countries

By Installation Management Command Europe changed from 6.5 liters to 6 liters.

HEIDELBERG, Germany -- After a legal review and acceptance by U.S. Customs officials, the total number of liters of alcohol that can be purchased per person per month by U.S. forces in some European counties is

Additionally, liqueurs with more than 33 percent alcohol by volume are now rationed along with distilled spirits (liquors).

Five or more miniature bottles (.05 liters) purchased together are now also rationed.

These changes affect Germany, Greece, the Netherlands, Spain and Turkey.

U.S. Forces Ration Card, AE Form 600-702C, has been revised, and ration card holders will be issued the new ration card when their old one expires.

A message from U.S. Army Europe: July 4 highlights Army values

By Lt. Gen. Mark P. Hertling,
U.S. Army Europe commanding general

The Fourth of July is one of my favorite holidays. It's a celebration of our nation's remarkable history and a celebration of our friends, neighbors and community. In the United States, Families and friends will gather for neighborhood block parties and hometown fireworks, while here in U.S. Army Europe we have the unique opportunity to join our host-nation partners, share in festivities with our community and demonstrate the pride and patriotism we have for our great nation and our Army.

These holiday celebrations remind us that our Army communities – our Families– are the foundation of our success. As we highlight in USAREUR's campaign plan, we take care of our people as they arrive and when they leave, we provide healthy working environments, support services and facilities while ensuring we meet or exceed standards.

During our nation's birthday, I'm reminded of two

Army values that epitomize our special Army community: loyalty and respect. Throughout USAREUR, there are thousands of stories of Soldiers, Families and civilians living those values as they come together and help each other out. Whether it's being there to pick up a new Family at the airport on their arrival in country, to going above and beyond in caring for a Soldier during deployment, our loyalty to one another is unmatched.

We also can't forget the host nation communities who take care of us when we deploy and provide opportunities for every member of the USAREUR Family to grow and broaden their cultural experiences. A few weeks ago, we celebrated the 70th birthday of USAREUR and the official naming of our new headquarters, "The Shali Center" at Wiesbaden's Clay Kaserne. As we unveiled our new command center and ushered in the next era of U.S. Army

Central Services now to let us know they will need child care. The phone number is 06783-6-6287.

Also, before leaving Bamberg, Families should visit their Parent Central Services office to out-process and request to have their child's file exported. When Families arrive in Baumholder, we can then import the child's file and make the registration process much easier.

Q: If we have not registered our children for school, when will we be able to register?

A: Children may be registered for school at any time. Summer hours are usually 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday. See your school registrar for any additional questions. Remember, the registration packet being submitted should include a copy of orders.

Q: Will any assistance be given to spouses who are currently employed in Bamberg when trying to transfer into similar positions in Baumholder? Are we allowed to start applying for positions in Baumholder before our orders are cut?

A: A list of positions currently open in the Baumholder footprint can be found at <http://armycivilianservice.usajobs.gov/JobSearch/Search/GetResults?Keyword=&Location=Baumholder&search=Search%21>.

According to Department of Defense Issuances, the spouse of an active duty member of the military services who relocates via a permanent change of station move as a sponsored dependent to the military sponsor's new permanent duty station is entitled to military spouse preference (MSP) for all positions in the commuting area of the new duty station being filled under competitive procedures. MSP requires that a spouse candidate be selected before other best qualified candidates.

The time period for MSP eligibility begins 30 days before the military sponsor's reporting date to the new duty station, if accompanied, or at any time thereafter during the tour. Eligible spouses retain preference for the duration of the sponsor's tour unless preference terminates sooner. Documentation supporting a preference or referral category must be uploaded in order to be considered for a vacancy.

Q: Some family members work on the German economy. What options do these individuals have in the Baumholder community?

A: Nobody who is working, regardless of their employer or citizenship, should quit their job before they've talked to their organization's human resources office about the possibility of transferring to a position located near their sponsor's new duty assignment. If they can't get a direct transfer then it's also possible they could receive some kind of non-competitive placement into a position before it's been advertised to the general public. After these possibilities have been explored, the family member should contact Ray Figueroa, the Army Community Service Employment Readiness Program manager in Baumholder at 06783-6-8188. He is a subject matter expert on employment opportunities on and around the installation. Local nationals, of course, also have the option of looking for work on the economy. Normally they would find out about these job opportunities through the local work office or "arbeitsamt." They can locate the nearest arbeitsamt by visiting the website www.arbeitsagentur.de and entering their new zip code in the "Ihre Postleitzahl" data field. There may also be work on post they can apply for – the ACS Employment Readiness Program representatives can help them find those – but generally, there are going to be a lot more opportunities for local nationals on the economy than on the installation.

Q: Will we have to re-register our vehicles? What is the process?

A: The standard requirements for people being transferred will be to re-register their vehicle within 30 days of arrival at Baumholder. They will need a new insurance card to do that, as well as the application. If they have more than one year remaining on their registration they can re-register without additional costs. If they have less than one year, they will have to pay the $30 registration fee. Normally, vehicles are not shipped within the command, as the owners drive the vehicles to the next duty station.

Q: When family members have referrals for off-post doctor services, do they have to go through the initial process again in Baumholder or will it transfer?

A: Since the referrals are in our Health Information Systems, those health care providers at the Baumholder Health Clinic can view those referrals. Those existing or remaining referrals can be appointed for the Host Nation Preferred Provider Network in the Baumholder area. Family members should go to the Health Care Finder at the TRICARE Office at the Baumholder Health Clinic to set up those appointments. The sponsor or family member needs to in-process or enroll at the Baumholder Health Clinic to facilitate the transition. The clinic may want the patient to visit with their new Primary Care Manager at the Baumholder Health Clinic so that the PCM can better understand the current diagnosis or treatment plan.

Signal Company prepares for battlefield operations

16th Special Troops Battalion
Soldiers with the 504th Signal Company, 16th Special Troops Battalion, 16th Sustainment Brigade, configure the call managers for voice over internet protocol phones during network training and new equipment fielding on Warner Barracks on June 21.

By 2nd Lt. Ryan Moschitto, 504th Signal Company

BAMBERG, Germany -- Soldiers from the 504th Signal Company, 16th Special Troops Battalion, 16th Sustainment Brigade, conducted new equipment fielding and network training June 4-22 on the Warfighter's Information Network – Tactical (WIN-T).

The WIN-T is the Army's high speed, high-capacity communication network providing the backbone for interoperability of joint, coalition, commercial and legacy networks. It allows Soldiers to communicate at-the-halt in any terrain. The system provides high-speed, high-capacity voice, data and video communications, to allow an exchange of information from any source to be relayed successfully to other units. Simply put, WIN-T is highly mobile wireless communication on the battlefield.

For the past nine months, the company eagerly anticipated the fielding and upgrading of the next generation WIN-T. The current upgrade and equipment fielding is WIN-T Increment 1, which resides at the theater, corps, division, brigade and battalion levels to provide interfaces for lower level systems and on the move Soldier platforms.

This fielding has been more than just another upgrade. The equipment was tested with blank configurations and settings, creating a great

New breathalyzer law will affect anyone who drives in France

By Robert Szostek, U.S. Army Europe Office of the Provost Marshal

HEIDELBERG, Germany -- Drivers who enter France – whether visiting, on business or just passing through – will be required to carry a breathalyzer unit in their vehicles, beginning July 1.

The new law recently announced by the French government is in response to a high volume of traffic incidents involving alcohol.

Nearly 30 percent of all fatal traffic accidents in France are due to alcohol consumption, according to a release by the German automobile club ADAC. "The tests will allow people to test themselves and others if they suspect they are over the (blood alcohol content) limit," said Lt. Col. Raymond Stuhn, chief of law enforcement at the U.S. Army Europe Office of the Provost Marshal. The legal limit in France is 0.5 grams per liter, he added.

Single-use breathalyzer tests are available in supermarkets, pharmacies and gas stations across France and cost about .50 euro to 1.50 euro, OPM officials said. Outside France they are available only at some pharmacies or online.

opportunity for both experienced and new Soldiers to build the network from beginning to end. Two instructors from Communications-Electronics Command at Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md., came to teach the Soldiers the new technology and demonstrate the differences from the previous system in order to make them proficient in their jobs.

The instruction was divided into two classes covering Joint Network Node and Command Post Node technologies, which support brigade and battalion communication requirements in an austere environment. Both classes started with a basic architecture overview and component orientation where Soldiers learned about the functions of the new hardware pieces and how these upgrades mesh with the older equipment.

The training then moved into signal theory and flow of communication from the tips of the fingers on a keyboard or the voice of someone on a near end of a phone through the cables, switches, routers, encryption, over the satellite and received on the distant end satellite and sent back out to the receiver's phone or computer.

With the JNN and CPN classes learning and refreshing their respective equipment and signal flow, the network quickly was coded and configured from scratch. By the second week both CPNs were "talking" to each other and the JNN. During the second week, the network was set up completely from start to finish and disassembled each day for the operators to practice battle drills and proper procedures.

Soon the two classes were competing for the fastest time to set up and make phone calls. By the third week, bugs and faults were purposely placed into the hardware, software and configurations for operators to troubleshoot and correct. These errors in the network created a problem solving atmosphere to challenge the operators and test their understanding of the signal flow and architecture of the new WIN-T technology.

In the coming weeks the equipment will receive simulated war configurations, be re-configured and have communication transmissions sent via satellite and line of sight to validate the networks capability and information integrity for voice, video and data transmission. The Soldiers will cross-train beyond their specific job description to broaden their skills and insight into this network architecture.

"It is great to see what we are capable of and for me to learn new skills on equipment I would not traditionally work on based on my (military occupational specialty)," said Spc. Jamie Jenkins, a signal support systems specialist for the 504th Signal Co.

As technology continues to be ever-evolving and advancing, the Soldiers of the 504th Signal Co. said they are motivated and enthusiastic about challenging their minds and taking on the new warfighter's network.

Disposable or electronic breath testing equipment may be used, ADAC reported.

The disposable variety consists of a tube and a plastic bag to blow into and use a color reaction to indicate whether a driver is over the legal BAC limit. Test kits carrying an "NF" consumer protection label are recommended in France.

Before Nov. 1, drivers found without the test kit in their vehicles will be given a warning; after that date they will be fined 11 euro on the spot.

"I recommend motorists have at least two

Eco-Friendly Tips

Energy-saving Tips

1. During warmer months, close blinds and drapes during the day to keep heat out and reduce the need for air conditioning.
2. When storing leftovers, make sure the cooked food is cool and covered before it goes into the refrigerator.

Recycling Tips

1. If you purchased beverages made in Germany and they are labeled "Pfandflasche" or "Mehrwegflasche" or they have the returnable sign, then you have paid a deposit. When the glass or plastic bottles or metal cans are empty, bring them back to the grocery store or beverage distributor to get your money back. The re-use or recycling of the containers will reduce the amount of waste.
2. Rather than cleaning up small spills with paper towels, use a kitchen towel, rag, or old T-shirt to do this. Use cloth napkins and wash them when dirty rather than using disposable paper napkins.

Water-saving Tips

1. Try to use phosphate-free, eco-friendly detergents and cleaning products. There's a great range to choose from these days and they are much better for our environment.
2. Put the plug in the sink when washing your hands or dishes instead of just holding them under running water.

Family Readiness Groups and private organization's participation enhance the celebration by providing additional activities and selling patriotic items and food. The groups and organizations volunteer during the day and utilize this as a fundraising opportunity.

"Thanks to FRGs, private organizations, sponsors and the many volunteers who help us in making this a memory of a lifetime," Clay said.

This year will see the return of the Miss and Mister Fourth of July Pageant, which is open to all community members' ages infant to 18 years.

Other entertainment will include DJ Tim, Schenk Duo and Tim Brown's band Lifeforce.

The Schenk Duo will be seen walking on stilts and performing on the second stage. They will make animal balloons, juggle and finish off with a fire show. Throughout the event they will also be holding some workshops for kids.

Tim Brown is a retired Soldier, and he and his band will cover various hits from American rock, country and oldies genres.

Family and MWR facilities will follow their normal published holiday hours of operation on July 4.

breathalyzers in their vehicle at all times," Stuhn advised, "so that one can be used if necessary while the other is there to show to police."

Driving under the influence of alcohol in France is punishable with a fine of 90 to 750 euro when BAC is between 0.5 and 0.8.

With a BAC over 0.8, drivers can be punished with a fine of up to 4,500 euro and up to two years' imprisonment, even without displaying any signs of drunkenness.

BAC limits in Europe ranges from 0.2 to 0.9. The most common limit in Europe is 0.5, and applies where most U.S. forces are stationed in Europe – Belgium, Germany, Italy and the Netherlands. Germany has a 0.3 limit if you're in an accident, said U.S. Army Europe Office of the Provost Marshal officials.

The Czech Republic, Hungary, Romania and Slovakia have zero tolerance.

When traveling in Europe, it is important for drivers to know what they may be required to carry in their vehicles.

Europe, we again realized that trust cannot be built overnight and that is one of the reasons we remain here. The respect that we have for our host nations will only continue to grow, and our past experiences together will never be forgotten.

Have a terrific Independence Day, relish in being an American and adhering to our Army's values, and enjoy a safe holiday!

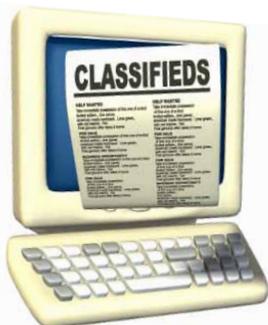

Strong Soldiers, Strong Teams!
